THE FONTEYN CASE

THE Margot Fonteyn case will surely rank as one of the most amazing incidents of the year. This world-famous figure seems to have been dragged unceremoniously into Panama politics on the allegations of no more reputable a company than the crew of a shrimp boat.

But without casting aspersions on the crew, it will seem incredible to British people that no stronger case against Dr Roberto Arias who is still missing, could be established before his wife whose alleged complicity in an unknown offense is even more doubtful, is put in jail for questioning.

Childish Excuse

THE fact that Dame Margot was put in the Panama Gaol's "Presidential Suite", that she was kindly treated by her warders and that she suffered no harm or hardship can at best be described as only childish excuses for a bad blunder by the Panama official who decided to arrest her.

The intention may have been to force Dame Margot's husband to reveal his existence. But if so, it was a pretty crude device. A moment's thought by the authorities would have told them that to hold a person who is held in such high esteem the world over, on such a flimsy pretext was bound to cause an uproar.

Their Mistake

INDEED, if there is a rebellion brewing in Panama, their action played into the rebels' hands. One can readily understand that a Government faced with the prospect of insurrection is nervous and apprehensive. But there is no excuse for what happened. It would be silly to suggest that here is a cause for diplomatic protest. In 24 hours the Panama authorities realised their mistake and released her. There is still some dispute over whether Dame Margot, left of her own accord or was requested to leave. But the fact that she was released after being detained for investigation shows clearly enough that the Panamanians had nothing against her.

Acted Wisely?

THERE is some question of whether Dame Margot acted wisely by visiting Panama at such a time, when a revolution in which her husband is involved is imminent. She of course took a risk that some unscrupulous official would take advantage of her presence to make trouble, but surely it is the instinct of any wife to be at her husband's side in circumstances such as this. Dame Margot has kept a busy round of engagements which has carried her all over the world in recent months — it will be recalled, she passed through Hongkong on her way to Japan. With another engagement to be kept in Poland shortly she may not have had an opportunity of seeing her husband for some time. What woman would have passed up the chance of visiting her husband under these circumstances? It is surely touching that Dame Margot put her duty to her husband before any thought of her professional standing. She did right to go.

BRITISH ASSESSMENT AFTER WEEK OF TALKS ALL NOT LOST IN IRAQ

Sir Humphrey Trevelyan Returns To Bagdad

By K. C. THALER

London, April 22.

Britain sent her envoy back to Bagdad today amidst expectations that "all is not lost" for the West in Communist-embroiled Iraq.

Sir Humphrey Trevelyan, the British Ambassador in Bagdad returned to London last week for consultations with the Government.

Sir Humphrey Trevelyan

They led to the conclusion that the situation in Iraq still is "fluid," and that despite the undisputed advance of Communism in the country the West has not been finally cast in its favour.

Informed sources said Britain has decided consequently to adopt a wait-and-see policy for a further trial period in the hope that the West's cause is not wholly lost.

No Sides

The further confusion drawn from latest consultation was, according to the sources, that the West should refrain from taking sides in the current quarrel between Iraq's Premier Karim Kassim and U.A.R. President Abdel Gamel Nasser. Karim himself is considered as an enigma whose final plans and intentions remain obscured by the developments forced upon the country by pressures outside his immediate control.

The Soviets are going all out to secure their grip on the country and are skillfully exploiting Iraq's mobilised masses for their own aims.

Yet, so far Moscow has not secured complete control; some observers feel she is still "a long way off" that goal, the sources said.

The great so far unanswered question is whether the so-called People's Resistance Militia will sweep the country or whether it will be curbed.

The assessment of the Iraq scene suggested that Nasser's propaganda war against Iraq tended to strengthen the Communist forces in the country.

If Nasser were to stop his attacks on Kassim and his forces, Communist pressure might weaken, the sources said.

In the light of these uncertainties and possibilities Britain has decided to continue her cautious policy and to maintain whatever links she has with Iraq in both the political and economic fields, the sources said.

Arms?

This may include the supply of industrial goods as well as spare parts for the arms which Britain has been delivering to Iraq in the past.

But she was understood chiefly of committing herself now to fresh arms supplies which the Iraq Government was reported to have suggested to Britain, despite the arms which she now receives from the Soviet Union.

New Nasser Move Against Reds

Cairo, April 22.

The Soviet information centre at Damascus, Syria has been closed down. It was reliably reported today.

All consulates have also been asked not to distribute publicity material. Observers viewed the ban as an attempt to prevent the consulates of Communist countries becoming propaganda centres. —Reuters.

5 MINERS DIE IN PIT BLAST

Wakefield, April 22. Five Yorkshire miners entombed at the bottom of an explosion-shattered mine died tonight but rescuers pressed their efforts to save three other trapped men.

A Coal Board spokesman announced that five of the eight men trapped deep in the Walton Colliery had died before rescue workers could reach them.

It was not known if the other three were still alive.

The underground blast at the Walton Pit near here trapped a total of 14 miners earlier today but six men stumbled to safety. They were rushed to a hospital for treatment of gas poisoning. —U.P.I.

Election Put Off?

London, April 22.

Mr Harold Macmillan, privately addressing Members of Parliament of his Conservative Party today hinted that a general election may not take place until next year.

The MPs were reliably reported to have left the gathering with the strong impression that Mr Macmillan has made up his mind to defer the general election at least until the autumn.

Many of them now believe that the Government will not go to the country until the spring of 1960.

Mr Macmillan was addressing a luncheon party.

Khrushchev To Visit Norway

Oslo, Apr. 22.

Soviet Premier, Nikita Khrushchev, will visit Norway between August 20 and 25, it was officially announced tonight.

A Foreign Affairs ministry spokesman said the schedule for Khrushchev's visit had not yet been established, but that a special committee was currently working on it. —France-Press.

Big Ben Gets A Face Lift

In trying to meet the requests for an official celebration of the centenary of Big Ben, which falls this year, the Government were confronted with a perplexing problem, what date should be observed to mark this important anniversary, should it be the centenary of the clock itself, which came into operation on May 31, 1859, or the centenary of Big Ben's first boom out across the Thames which was on July 11, 1859.

In the end the Government, after giving the matter much thought, came to a compromise and it was decided that a ceremony should be held in New Palace Yard on June 3 of this year and also it was decided to open an exhibition of material relating to the great clock on the same date.

This picture shows workmen swinging in their cradles as they clean the great clock face of the Palace of Westminster with the traffic moving many hundreds of feet below. It takes eight days to clean all four faces of the clock.

Another Gaol Mutiny: Troops, Police Release 16 Hostages

Concord, Mass., April 22.

A mutiny involving 63 convicts at Concord Reformatory ended tonight and their 16 hostages were released.

The three-hour rebellion ended without apparent bloodshed after Massachusetts state troopers lobbed tear gas into the mutineers' garrison.

At one point, the gun-toting ringleader of the mutineers threatened to kill the 14 guards and two civilian employees held as hostages.

But the ringleader, Charles (Bull) Martin, a hardened hold-up man, surrendered to State Police along with the rest of his confederates.

Supper Time

The revolt, second in Massachusetts within two months, started in the prison dining hall at supper time.

Prison officials said 63 inmates at first were involved in the mutiny. However, in the confusion, 40 remained in the dining hall-kitchen building while 17 seized the hostages and headed for the cell block.

The 17 locked themselves and their hostages in the cell block. They burned through two sets of cell bars with acetylene torches to subdue the convicts and release the hostages.

The men in the dining hall, meanwhile, remained there and began surrendering as State troopers used tear gas on them.

Rushed Cells

The troopers then rushed the cell block. They burned through two sets of cell bars with acetylene torches to subdue the convicts and release the hostages.

About 6.45 p.m. local time a State Police spokesman said the rioters were "subdued."

However, first indication of the breakup came when two convicts, gasping from the tear gas, walked out the dining hall.

Three doctors walked into the dining room to treat the other gassed inmates. —U.P.I.

Anna And Brando Divorced

Santa Monica, April 22.

Actress Anna Kashfi obtained a divorce today from her film star husband, Marlon Brando.

She testified that Brando was frequently away from their home and she alleged grievous mental suffering.

The couple were married in October, 1957, and separated last September 25.

Miss Kashfi received a property settlement of $200,000 (about $178,000) of which $60,000 (about $51,400) was to be paid immediately in cash. —Reuters.

Masked Men Hold Up Goldsmiths

Three masked men, two of them armed with revolvers, entered a goldsmith's shop in Nathan Road this morning at 10 a.m., and at gunpoint removed a number of gold ornaments.

The robbers went into the Shun Kee Goldsmith shop and warned the men behind the counter not to move. They then took the gold ornaments, the value of which is not yet known, and made their escape.

Later in the morning Police search parties were set up outside the two Star Ferry piers in Hongkong and Kowloon. Police are still making enquiries into the robbery. At the time of going to press, no one had been detained.

Dame Margot Arrives In New York

New York, April 22.

Dame Margot Fonteyn, British Prima Ballerina who was released from detention in Panama early today, arrived here smiling and tanned this afternoon and refused to answer questions on the reported anti-Government plot in Panama or the present whereabouts of her husband Dr Roberto Arias.

She parried reporters' questions at the airport by saying "I will not answer questions about Panama."

But she said she would leave for London within the next two weeks because she had an engagement to dance with Michael Somes with the Polish ballet in Poland next month and would need to do some training beforehand.

Anxiety?

An insistent journalist asked her if she felt anxiety about her husband, Dr Roberto Arias, at present being sought by the Panamanian authorities on charges of complicity in an alleged coup d'etat.

"Naturally I do," she said. "Any woman who does not know where her husband is, is naturally concerned. I think it is a silly question."

As soon as Dame Margot arrived in New York she was hustled away by airport officials to speak to her mother in England by telephone.

In reply to repeated pleas from reporters to answer questions, Dame Margot said: "I

Roberto's Hide-Out Located?

Panama City, April 22.

A Government source claimed today that a captured rebel had led army troops to the hide-out of Roberto Arias at a Pacific beach resort 73 miles from Panama City.

Arias had fled, however, the source said, leaving behind a suitcase.

The rebel was identified as Alfredo Jimenez, a Panamanian who had landed at the resort town of Santa Clara with Arias on Sunday night.

Jimenez, the source said, also revealed the hiding place of a rebel arms cache which included 17 revolvers, one submachinegun and several rounds of ammunition. —U.P.I.

NY Surgeon Sees 2-Headed Dog Operation

Moscow, April 22. The Soviet surgeon who successfully transplanted a puppy's head on to the neck of a dog last month did it again today with a New York plastic surgeon looking on, Tass said.

Tass said Dr. Blair O. Rogers, of New York City, watched the entire four-hour operation during which the head of one dog was transplanted to the neck of another.

Dr. Rogers, who also lectures at New York University, currently is on a lecture tour of the Soviet Union.

When the operation was over, Dr. Rogers called it "one of the most impressive experiments I have ever seen," Tass said.

STILL ALIVE

Dr. Rogers had gone to Dr. Vladimir Demikhov's Moscow laboratory to see "Pirate," Demikhov's earlier two-headed dog which still is alive after 27 days, and was allowed to witness the new operation.

Earlier two-headed dogs had lived only six days. In "Pirate's" case, the head and forelegs of a puppy were grafted onto the back of a bigger dog's neck. —U.P.I.

London, April 22. The British Council of Churches suggested today that Britain should share its nuclear weapons with "its European allies as the first step in a bid to prevent other powers pressing for their own bomb."

The plea is made in a pamphlet "Christians and the Atomic War," published by the Council today. Most Protestant churches in Britain are members. —Reuter.

Manufacture Of A-Fuel Questions In Commons

London, April 22. Mr. Harold Macmillan, the Prime Minister, today faced a barrage of questions in the House of Commons on a statement by a government spokesman yesterday that a private firm was about to manufacture fuel elements for the atom bomb.

The Labour Party questioned whether this fuel should be made by any firm not controlled by the State.

Mr. Macmillan told questioners that Belsa House Limited is to manufacture the fuel elements for Britain's first nuclear submarine. But, he added, the material would be supplied by and remain the property of the Admiralty.

He added: "At the present time, and for many years to come, I think, except for certain processing questions, the material will be supplied either by the Atomic Energy Authority or, in the case of defence purposes, by the defence departments."

OBJECT OF BILL
Mr. Macmillan said the object of the Nuclear Installations (Licensing and Insurance) Bill—now being considered by the House—was "to provide for the future now that we are entering into the new atomic age."

"In the future it may be, though I do not think it very likely owing to the enormous cost involved, that there will be the manufacture of elements as part of the process of industry."

"If, as I hope, ships, aeroplanes and all kinds of methods of propulsion are going to be part of the current life of the nation, then it is not a good thing to introduce a bill to see that proper licensing and control is arranged for that future?" he asked.—Reuter.

Power Talks NATO COUNTRIES WILL STRENGTHEN THEIR DEFENCES

Moscow, April 22. Russia has told the United States that plans to equip West Germany, Greece, Turkey and other Nato countries with nuclear and rocket weapons "contradict the aims" of top-level talks between East and West, Tass reported tonight.

The agency gave details of a note handed to Mr. Llewellyn Thompson, the United States Ambassador in Moscow yesterday.

The Soviet note accused the United States of violating the post-war Allied ban on the rearmament and militarisation of Germany by "extending preparations for atomic warfare" on West German territory and equipping the West German armed forces with nuclear and rocket weapons.

Positive Upshot

The note said measures for the atomic arming of West Germany were "an attempt to wreck" in advance the forthcoming Big Four talks on Germany.

The Soviet Government, the note said, regarded the East-West agreement to meet at the conference table to settle thorny international issues as "the greatest positive upshot of international developments over the past few years."

On the eve of these talks the participants should "refrain from any action that might complicate the international situation and prevent the conference from succeeding."

Reserves Right

The note said Russia regarded the measures for the atomic arming of West Germany as unlawful "and protests against them."

The Soviet Government, it declared, "reserves the right to draw appropriate conclusions for its attitude towards West Germany."

In Washington the State Department said that the Soviet Union had shown a hypocritical attitude in its notes to the United States and West Germany.

Propaganda

It described the notes as "propaganda" on the eve of the Western Foreign Ministers conference opening in Paris on April 28.

The State Department spokesman, Mr. Lincoln White, amplified a formal statement by saying that the West would continue to strengthen its defence, in line with the decision taken by the Nato heads of government at their Paris meeting in December, 1957, despite the Soviet notes. —Reuter.

India Not Giving Up English

New Delhi, April 22. A committee of the Indian Parliament recommended today that English should continue to be a subsidiary official language even after Hindi becomes India's principal official language in 1965.

The committee's report, tabled in both Houses of Parliament, said it was impracticable completely to replace English with Hindi by 1965 as the Constitution demands.

The committee which included members of all political parties said English should be used as a subsidiary official language "for as long as may be necessary." —Reuter.

John Ford Rejects Big Offer

Taipei, April 22. Film director John Ford said today he has turned down a $250,000 Hollywood offer so he could devote his time to the filming of an indoctrination picture in Formosa for the U.S. Department of Defence.

Ford, a reserve Rear Admiral in the U.S. Navy, said the picture, entitled "Taiwan, the Island Fortress," is intended to help the servicemen and their dependants understand the customs and traditions of the Chinese people before they come to serve in Formosa.

He did not name the picture he rejected in Hollywood. But he said the story was "lousy." —U.P.I.

Japanese Textiles For United States

Washington, April 22. Japan is planning to step up its shipments of cotton textiles to the United States to about 247 million square yards annually over the next two years, authoritative sources said today.

They said an announcement was expected soon that Japan would increase its exports from the 239 million square yards voluntary quota which has operated since 1957.

The higher figure of 247 million square yards was worked out in discussion with United States officials, including Mr. Henry Kearn, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for International Affairs. But the American textile industry has voiced flat opposition to any increase in the quota.—Reuter.

Dulles steps down but the great argument
still remains...

GENIUS OR BLUNDERER?

By DON IDDON

New York, Wednesday.

CANCER has defeated John Foster Dulles, United States Secretary of State for more than six years, where Communism could not. Recently Mr Dulles, told by his doctors that the cancer was spreading throughout his body, took the news philosophically, even jauntily.

After informing the President that he was compelled to resign, he read the Washington Post, New York Times, and the clinical dispatches headlined "Dulles Is Worse...."

Cancer Spreads....
Dulles's Neck Is Affected by Disease."

That afternoon, Washington's evening paper, the Washington Star, headlined President Eisenhower's words to his Press conference in Augusta, Georgia, "Dulles is Absolutely Incapacitated."

Later Press Secretary James Hagerty asked correspondents to delete the word "absolutely" but it had already gone out over the radio and television network to millions of people and had appeared in thousands of newspapers.

Mr Dulles was calmer then, knowing that death is closing in on him, than President Eisenhower whose eyes were moist with tears as he announced Mr Dulles's decision to step down and told of the doctor's report.

Mrs Dulles displayed the same fortitude as her husband when she visited the President at the Walter Reed Hospital, where her husband was sitting up in a chair near a window wearing a shabby dressing-gown over his pyjamas.

Cheerful

He was haggard and emaciated. During his 45 days' treatment he has dropped a stone-and-a-half in weight. But outwardly he tried to be cheerful.

As the country and the world learned of Mr Dulles's formal resignation millions were asking "What will be history's verdict on John Foster Dulles as man and statesman?"

There is no debate about Mr Dulles's qualities as a man. He

SAID EISENHOWER:

THE GREATEST SECRETARY OF STATE IN HISTORY...

SAID FULBRIGHT:

I DO NOT TRUST ONE
WORD HE SAYS...

is brave, gallant, tenacious, loyal, a person of formidable intelligence, vast experience, and great knowledge.

He has proved himself a tireless public servant, the President's most powerful lieutenant, and in private life has been a perfect husband and father.

The evaluation of Dulles as a statesman is bound to provoke debate. President Eisenhower has called him several times "the greatest Secretary of State in the history of the Republic," and has added with blunt emphasis, "bar none."

As the other extreme Senator William Fulbright, chairman of the important Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has called "Dulles's policies 'a disaster' and has said of the man: 'I do not trust a word he says.' There is no truth in the man."

Senator Fulbright, for one else for that matter, was not uttering such harsh criticisms as Mr Dulles prepared to retire and give up the long struggle he has fought with such magnificent courage.

When doctors first disclosed after a hernia operation that cancer was present, this country and the Western world were swept by a great wave of sympathy for the sick man.

Powerful

It is more than two years since Mr Dulles was first operated on, but then cancer was considered non-malignant and Mr Dulles was back at his desk at the State Department within three weeks. The face became peaceful, and Dulles said: "I should know at my age there are no certainties in this life."

Four years later he got from the hands of Eisenhower the prize he had coveted with almost fanatical zeal.

From the moment Dulles sat down at the big mahogany desk he seized almost total power. It was made quite clear to his Ambassadors and Ministers that he was the boss and that when anything important arose he would be in a place to tackle the matter on the spot.

Confident

The Dulles of the past few weeks has been an entirely different, more gentle man than Dulles the supreme boss of the State Department.

He has been deeply moved by the thousands of encouraging messages he has received from all over the country and many from Great Britain.

Dulles's courage and standing and application are legend, and his memory is prodigious. Eisenhower, at a recent Press conference said: "Mr Dulles has the most brilliant mind of any man I ever met."

My own appraisal is that while Dulles is a brave and good man he will not be considered by history as a great, or even particularly successful, Secretary of State.

I remember him saying, when he was asked to evaluate his role in history: "If I remember I guess it will be chiefly for three things. Bank of war, agonising reappraisal, and massive retaliation, and I'd be prepared to go to court to defend each statement, but there's no court in my calling."

During his strenuous days in office Dulles's egocentricity was marked, yet it lacked flamboyance and ostentation. He was not a showman in the conventional sense, although he enjoyed publicity.

Now I must mention the Suez affair. It is my conviction that Mr Dulles hoodwinked and let down Sir Anthony Eden.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

WHEN you are pretty sure that your partner has bid a four card suit you try to avoid raising him with only three trumps—but North could find a better bid than two spades. As for his raise to four spades the only favourable thing that can be said about it is that it was no worse than South's bid of three. At this point East could not of three. East cashed two heart tricks bent the hand. Actually he and led the eight of clubs. A trump shift would have beaten the hand but East did not want to lead from the queen. From this point on South justified his overbid. He won that club, cashed dummy's two high diamonds and his other high club and ruffed a third club with dummy's ten of trumps. South won. In his own hand ruffed another club with dummy's king of trumps, got back to his hand by ruffing a diamond, drew trumps and made the last trick with his fifth club.

When South ruffed with dummy's ten of spades East had several lines of defence. It should be of considerable interest to you readers to study them and see how South could reply to each one.

YOUR BIRTHDAY ... By STELLA

THURSDAY, APRIL 23

BORN today, you have been given an exceptional talent by the stars. That developed this talent can turn you into a person who will influence the age in which you live. You seem to understand people and their motivations better than many, being able to use your talents to help—these are your fortune tellers.

You can write so vividly of a cause that you usually influence others to act. You make good use of your sense of humour and are never too serious in pressing home your point.

You have an active, outgoing personality. Since you are blunt in expressing your opinion, you may cause a little friction and diplomacy. You are so convinced of your "rightness" in every thing that you don't see why you have to dress up the facts in fancy clothes. Keep in mind that others may not have your straight-thinking discernment. Such people often need to window-dress an idea to make it palatable. Your emotions are near the surface, and you are inclined to mistake intuition for a true and lasting love. Food of the beautiful things in life, you will want your own home to be a perfect setting for these you love. You women especially, will spend a great deal of time and effort in being the perfect homemaker.

Among those born on this date are: Stephen A. Douglas, the "Little Giant" of the debates with Lincoln; James Buchanan, U.S. President; Talbot Mundy, author; Viscountess Elizabeth, famous British general; Friedrich von Hagedorn, German poet.

CHILDREN'S CORNER

Trip To Never-Never Land

Knart, Hanid and Friends Have a Rite Treat

EVERYONE boarded the electric train. The station was at the edge of the carpet between the bookcase and the radiator.

Mr. Punch was the engineer. Knart, the Shadow Boy, was the assistant.

The conductor was General Tin, the Tin Soldier, for he was the only one with a uniform.

Passenger List

The passengers were Teddy, the Stuffed Bear, Mary Jane, the Rag Doll, Hlawatha, the Small-Sized Wooden Indian, and Hanid, the Shadow Girl.

The train ran straight on its track, right across the room. When the track ended and the train kept going. It went straight through the wall! But there wasn't any crash. The wall was like mist.

And suddenly there they all were on the other side.

There were now trucks now. They stretched on for miles after miles, past rows of trees and lovely houses and mountains far in the distance, looking like white cream puffs (which is what they were).

Finally the train stopped before the gates of a beautiful palace. There were spires and turrets and flags and banners, all shining in the sun.

A Bell Tolls

Then everyone got off the train and Mr. Punch went up to the gate and pulled a long cord. Then a bell started ringing.

The next minute, the gates were flung open. Knart and Hanid and Mr. Punch and General Tin and Teddy, the Stuffed Bear, and Mary Jane, the Rag Doll, and Hlawatha, the Small-Sized Wooden Indian, all marched inside.

And there, sitting on a golden chair in the middle of the garden was King Tut-Wat, the King of Never-Never-Land.

In Never-Never-Land nothing is the same as it is anywhere else. "Welcome!" said King Tut-Wat to his visitors. "Do whatever you like! Go wherever you please! Have fun! I want everyone to enjoy himself. And don't be surprised at anything you see. Don't forget this is Never-Never Land, where everything is different! Everything is different! Knart met a dog that mowed!

Mr. Punch danced a lively jig with a goat!

Hanid found a boy sitting on a kite as it flew through the air. Mary Jane played tag with half a dozen fishes, who had come out of the pond and were slipping on their tails across the lawn.

Mr. Punch danced a jig with a goat!

General Tin walked up and down with a whole flock of robins and sparrows and swallows sitting on his head and shoulders!

Hlawatha went to sleep on the top of the royal pond and didn't even get wet!

And what a wonderful picnic lunch King Tut-Wat, of Never-Never-Land gave them all!

South China ... 3, Kitchee ... 2 KITCHEE WERE IN CHAOS

Yiu Cheuk-Yin Thumbs His Nose At Selectors With A Brilliant Hat-Trick

By I. M. MACTAVISH

Hongkong soccer today reveals a picture as changing and unpredictable as the fickle patterns in a kaleidoscope. You have to take it as it comes.

A few short days ago Kitchee charmed the football fraternity by scoring a well-deserved victory over KMB ... and almost at the same time South China were driving their faithful supporters to distraction by scratching out an inglorious win against Sing Tao. A fascinating pre-match pattern for this vital game.

The Colony soccer fans must have had their points in mind yesterday when they packed the Police Stadium at Boundary Street and overflowed in their thousands onto the adjacent verandahs ... and even onto the branches of advantageously situated trees. The fans were on edge for a great battle. It never quite worked out that way.

South China beat Kitchee by five goals to two. In spite of occasional forward surges by Kitchee, during which they produced some neat forward play, it was an easy South China success.

No One-Man Show

They played with an understanding and confidence which the opposition could never match and Yiu Cheuk-yin grabbed the opportunity to poke a finger of soccer scorn at the Colony team selectors who have left him out of the next All-Hongkong team by scoring a brilliant first half hat-trick. The little inside-left was the guiding genius behind almost every South China attack and his prompting brought out glimpses of feeling as they were of vintage Mok Chun-wah.

That this was no one-man show, South China won even more easily than the score suggests. They missed at least half a dozen point-blank chances when it seemed a mere simple task to score than to miss. Some of the trouble attempts at converting gift-god opportunities made one wonder just how seriously the Champions were regarding the situation.

Apart from the succession of misses they had two first-half goals chalked off for offences spotted by the referee. With a really serious approach to the job of goal-keeping one felt that South China could surely have built up a score that would have been more than just a little embarrassing to the boys in white and blue.

Kitchee made several changes from the lively side that did so well against KMB. In every case it was a change for the worse. The remodelled defence was shocking.

Taieto, who played such a storming part in the Kitchee overthrow of the Busmen, moved from right-half to the right-back position and was never happy. He was neither a right-back nor a right-half and in the course of the game he was caught out of position on countless occasions.

In front of him Kwok Yau was pulled back from the forward line to fill the vacant right-half position and there he continued to play like the very competent inside-forward he is. Three without number he was away with his forwards while the South China attackers ravaged the Kitchee defence.

Shu Ping-sun took over the central half berth to the exclusion of wily old Tan Kar-sau and the best one can say is that Shu never stopped trying but unfortunately for Kitchee his efforts were not good enough to hold the South China "inside" trio. His job was further complicated by the wanderings of Lee Yuk-tak, his immediate opponent, and the pivot all-in-all spent a most uncomfortable evening. Chen Ming-chih was a failure on the Kitchee right wing but the "ruzzing" he got from some of the spectators in the second half was hardly calculated to help him find his touch.

Brilliant Save

Szeto Sun and Szeto Man were hard in the local attack. Some of their inter-passing was very good but Chu Wing-wah has currently lost both his form and his old fashioned enthusiasm for the game while floor-footed Yeung Wai-to was good and not so good in turn.

The gates at Boundary Street were closed long before the official starting time and the capacity crowd backed in a warm afternoon sun as they waited for the encounter to begin. They didn't have long to wait for action.

In the opening minutes they saw a brilliant save by Kwok Wing-ming thwart a fine try by Chen Chiu-keung.

Kitchee made several changes from the lively side that did so well against KMB. In every case it was a change for the worse. The remodelled defence was shocking.

Taieto, who played such a storming part in the Kitchee offence—and South China looked by far the more potent and compact side. Yiu Cheuk-yin put his team in the lead in the 19th minute with a beautiful header from a Ho Chi-kwan cross and five minutes later he moved onto a neat pass by Lee Yuk-tak to beat the Kitchee goalkeeper all ends up. At this stage South China were full value for their two goals lead.

The Champions were inclined to coast a bit after this but Szeto Man shook them up in the 28th minute when he finished off a good combined movement with Kwok Yau by sweeping a grand shot into the net.

Hopes Dispelled

Kitchee very nearly snatched the equaliser immediately when, first Szeto Man hit the post with Lai Kin-cheung well beaten, and then Yeung Wai-to just failed by inches to get his head to a flashing cross from the right. ... but South China were still very much in the picture and Yiu Cheuk-yin completed his hat-trick with a long left-foot shot high into the net. He looked smugly satisfied ... and rightly so.

As soon as the ball was put back in play Kitchee launched a strong attack. Szeto Sun did the spade work and as the ball rebounded from a defender's leg Chu Wing-wah glided it accurately into the corner of the net to make the interval score South China ... 3, Kitchee ... 2. If Kitchee had any secret hopes of staging another giant-killing at these were quickly dispelled when play restarted. South China, after surviving a couple of Kitchee thrusts, raced to the other end and Ho Cheung-yu held on tenaciously to curve a mazy way through the defence to put his side into a 4-2 lead.

Glorious Shot

The Caroline Hill boys were soon back on the attack and within a couple of minutes of their fourth goal they got another. The ball was pushed out of the danger area by a desperate Kitchee defender. Indirectly it reached Le Cheung-kwong and the young right-half sent a glorious shot rocketing into the net.

With a 5-2 lead South China free-wheeled to victory and the spectators who had fought so hard to get in were streaming out of the stadium. In their thousands long before the end. Verdict: South China won without having to exert themselves unduly. Yiu Cheuk-yin was both the way and the means to victory.

In Lo Cheung-kwong, the Champions have found a boy who can rise great heights as he gains experience.

Lau Yee played well but blotted his copybook with a couple of nasty fouls on Szeto Man and Szeto Sun. His ready smile, shallow show of concern and hearty pat on the back are poor compensation for the injuries which all too frequently result from his ruthless tackling.

Kitchee were a sad disappointment and if they win nothing else they must now be strong favourites for the title of "Champion Defeaters". Out of this lot only only Lok Chow-ming, Lok Tak-hing and Szeto Man can take any satisfaction. Of the others ... pool.

WOLVES RETAIN ENGLISH SOCCER LEAGUE TITLE FOR SECOND YEAR

London, April 22.

Wolverhampton Wanderers made absolutely sure of winning the English football league championship for the second successive year by beating Leicester City 3-0 at Wolverhampton tonight.

The "Wolves" had virtually clinched the title last Saturday when they beat Luton Town 6-0. Only a wildly improbable scoring extravaganza by Manchester United could have robbed the champions and their victory tonight put the issue beyond doubt.

Receive Trophy

Goals by Norman Deeley, Michael Lill and Jimmy Murray brought Wolves their win. At the end of the match thousands of excited fans swarmed on to the pitch and watched skipper Billy Wright receive the Championship trophy from Mr Len Shipman, the Leicester chairman.

Justice Saul Street upheld the right of the New York State Athletic Commission to choose the challenger for a championship bout and to fix the date. But he said, the Commission, according to its own rules, did not have the right to choose the location.

The 38-year-old Negro champion went to court after the Commission ordered him on April 3 to sign to defend his crown against Basilio, the number one challenger.

The Commission's rules require a champion to defend his title every six months. Robinson's last bout was against Basilio in March, 1955 when he regained the title.

Judge Street said that if Robinson did not sign for a defence, the Commission might declare the title vacant. Robinson had been negotiating to fight Archie Moore for the world light-heavyweight championship, but this was held up when Moore signed for a return bout against Yvon Durelle in Montreal on July 15. —Reuter.

What a magnificent meet the Land Forces Hongkong athletic and tug-of-war Major Unit championships, held at Boundary Street last Saturday fortnight turned out to be.

If the meet itself wasn't sufficient, surely the truly stupendous efforts by the 1 Green Howards must have been.

Running magnificently as a team in the truck events, and with two very good entrants for the field events, they finally overcame 1 RTR by 100 points to 103. Third was 32 Med Regt RA with 80 points.

This club, with two very sporting teams as the chief contestants, was completely in the balance until the very last event.

The Minor Units on the previous Thursday had broken the record, so the Major Units decided that this couldn't go unchallenged. They also broke live records, the hammer, high jump, 4 x 110 yds relay, 4 x 120 yds hurdles, and finally the 4 x 440 yds relay.

The tug-of-war was won by 5 Fd Regt RA, who beat 32 Med Regt RA by two pulls to nil.

Old Rivals

The meet itself got under way as per programme, and whilst the pole vault and hammer were taking place, the runners for the 3 miles team race, teams of four, got under way. This race brought together once again these two old rivals Banks and Milbourne.

Once again Banks showed his superiority, and won in the good time of 16 minutes 6 secs. But this was a team race, and although 1 RTR finally won with 32 running points, they were closely followed home by 32 Med Regt RA, with a total of 35 points, and 1st Lt. Lan R (PWV) with 41 points.

The heats of the 4 x 120 yds hurdles were then run off, and 1 Green Howards bettered the existing record. They were to do even better in the finals though.

The first record to go was the hammer. With a combined throw of 242 feet 9 inches 1 RTR bettered the existing record by 1 foot 11 inches.

The pole vault was rather disappointing, due no doubt to the first string of 1 RTR being away. They were placed first in the final, nevertheless, and by the end of the morning were well in the lead with 24 points, having gained three first places.

Green Howards certainly threatened no danger at this stage.

Records

Immediately after the noon break the next record went. 32 Med Regt RA were successful in this. With some beautiful jumping, especially from Clarke, they pushed the new record up to 11 feet 2 inches.

This beat the old record by 4 inches. 1 GH then began to catch up on 1 RTR, and took the weight, 4 x 800 yds relay, 4 x 110 yds relay and the discus in rapid succession. They captured the weight title with a combined throw of 89 feet 4 1/2 inches. The next event, the 4 x 800 yds relay, also went to 1 GH, in the fast time of 8 minutes 37 1/2 secs. Then came the 4 x 110 yds relay. With some first class baton changing 1 GH shattered the old record in the 4 x 110 yds relay, with a time of 45 1/2 secs.

This beat the existing record by 3 secs. The discus went to 1 GH, their two men throwing a total distance of 208 feet 9 1/2 inches.

1 RTR then came back, and only just failed to beat the record in the long jump. They jumped a total of 37 feet 10 1/2 inches, but 1 GH could only manage 5th place.

Although Banks of 1 RTR was first home in the one mile team race, he could not stop 1 GH from winning, and scoring maximum points.

Turning Point

The javelin went to 1 RTR with a combined throw of 298 feet 4 inches, but the 4 x 220 yds relay 1 GH thought was the turning point in this very tense struggle for points. Once again 1 GH, with some very fine baton changing won in the time of 1 minute 38 1/2 secs. 1 RTR could only manage 4th place behind 48 Fd Regt RA and 32 Med Regt RA.

The 4 x 120 yds hurdles led to 1 GH, and here another record went. Hurdling extremely well they were never headed, and won in the time of 1 minute 12 secs. The final really put the old record of 1 minute 13 1/2 secs in the shade.

At this stage 1 GH were leading 1 RTR by one point, and so the scene was set for a most exciting climax to this very fine meet.

All six runners got off to a good start in the 4 x 440 yds relay. The first runner of 1 GH handed over a very useful lead to their number 2, and he Improved on this appreciably. 1 RTR certainly had other things on the mind, and by some very fine running down, gradually reduced the lead.

Most Exciting

By the final leg 1 GH had only just got their nose in front. The 4th leg of this race was most exciting with 1 RTR always threatening. But 1 GH refused to be beaten, and ran on to win in the new record time of 3 minutes 41 1/2 secs. 1 GH therefore captured another championship. What a fine record they have set up during this season. The final results were:—

Points

1. 1 Green Howards ... 100

2. 1 RTR ... 103

3. 32 Med Regt RA ... 80

4. 48 Fd Regt RA ... 69

5. 1 LAN R (PWV) ... 49

6. 3 Fd Regt RA ... 32

A most successful meet, which I am sure was fully appreciated by the very large gathering of spectators, who certainly had something to cheer about.

One of the stars of the 1st Bn Green Howards played selections during the afternoon. The trophies were presented Mrs Chestnut, wife of Brig J. M. A. Chestnut, C.B.E., Commander British Forces Hongkong.

At Boundary Street this Sunday, a Combined Services Athletic Team will meet a Combined Civilian Team.

The meet starts at 1.45 p.m., and there should be a veritable onslaught, with the strongest teams opposing each other.

With the Major Unit Athletic Championships behind us, the Army have an extremely good assessment of the ones who have been chosen. Naturally with the main strength coming from the Army, it is hoped that as many spectators as possible will turn up.

Clarke of 32 Med Regt RA who cleared 5 ft 11 1/2 ins in the recent open championships should be a very strong contender for the high jump.

16 Events

The one mile should bring out the best in Banks. 1 RTR, as should the 3 miles out of Milbourne of 1 LAN R (PWV). The Meet is sponsored by the Hongkong Amateur Athletic Association, and altogether there will be a most enjoyable day.

Continuing Our Series On The Great Men In Ring History Greatest Fighter Ever Sent To America

TOO FRAIL TED LEWIS WAS A FEARLESS MAN IN THE RING

By HAROLD MAYES

Americans have held a virtual monopoly of the world boxing title situation and with few exceptions they are able to look almost derisively at suggested British challengers in any weight division.

But it is satisfying to be able to recall one British fighter of other days who never received anything but resounding praise from anyone who watched him on the other side of the Atlantic.

Without exception, in fact, every old-timer with whom I have discussed this particular ring operator in the States, has unhesitatingly declared: "The greatest fighter Britain ever sent to America."

On that alone, quite aside from his remarkable record, Gershon Mendeloff qualifies for inclusion in any series on fighters who became "Legends in their Lifetime."

He's a sprightly 63 now, seldom missing from the ring-side at any big London promotion, this living legend from London's East End whom the world knows as the former welterweight champion, Ted "Kid" Lewis.

His Secret

Ted's secret was that he would do anything for a fight. I recall Ted Broadbitt, the man who piloted Tommy Farr to an unsuccessful world heavyweight title bout with Joe Louis, and took Freddie Mills to the world light-heavyweight crown, telling me of the three when he retired from boxing, back in 1911 and began promoting at a small hall in London.

"A thin-faced kid came to me and told me he would box eight rounds for twelve and sixpence, and ten or fifteen rounds for fifteen bob," Broadbitt told me. Then he added:

"I told him 'Six rounds will be plenty for you. I'll fix you if I can.' I thought he looked so frail."

Which goes to show just how deceptive appearances can be with fighting men. For less than two years later, in October, 1913, this striping, boxed a number of 20-round bouts, and had knocked out Alvin Lambert in 17 rounds at the National Sporting Club to become British featherweight champion.

Last Fight

Two fights later he added the European nine-stone title to it. He made his way via Australia to United States, there to win the world welterweight crown and hold it four years to tackle all comers, including no fewer than 20 meetings with the man who was eventually to dethrone him, Jack Britton.

He then came back to Britain, and met Georges Carpentier, then light heavyweight champion of the world, and won British and European middleweight titles.

And when, in his last fight at Hoxton Baths, London, in December 1929, he halted Johnny Basham in three rounds, his career had spanned more than 19 years.

That was his third meeting with the great Basham, and Lewis won them all inside the distance, the last being the quickest job of the three.

Like A Yo-Yo

Just as he always looked for a fight, so did he make sure when he was in the ring that the customers had value for money. He boxed through the divisions from featherweight to light-heavyweight, but, unlike so many men today who move up a division when weight worries overtake them, Lewis had different ideas.

If weight-shedding had to be done, to accommodate an opponent, Lewis always had sufficient confidence in his own ability and his punch power, to make the sacrifice.

Indeed, he went up and down the scale like a yo-yo. The fact that he was such a martyr to the rubber suits he introduced to the boxing business for weight-reducing, and to the "sweat-box," only serves to make his outstanding performance the more remarkable.

And if he contributed something to present-day training methods in that respect, he made a fine contribution to boxers' well-being by introducing something which has now become universal—the mouthpiece, or gum-shield.

Lewis had irregular teeth, and in his early contests he often suffered torn lips as a result. He had a friend who was an assistant in a dental laboratory and who experimented with a thin rubber covering for the teeth, which worked so well that Ted used it regularly.

He introduced them in Australia and also used a mouthpiece in his debut in Madison Square Garden, New York, in November, 1914.

For a long time he had to engage in arguments with opponents, referees and boxing officials to be allowed to do so, but finally the prejudice was worn down until gumshield became universal equipment.

So as well as being a great fighter, Lewis achieved ring immortality by his campaigning in this direction.

Hands held low, a master in the art of slipping and ducking, of which we see little today, the "Kid" was a devastating puncher, particularly with his left hook, and he also had that ferocious approach to the fight game which so many present-day performers appear to lack.

Loved The Business

Mouthpieces apart, he paid no attention to his features, and no one being greeted by his ready smile today would be under any illusions that he made his name as a film star. He couldn't have been anything else but a fighter.

He just loved the business as, indeed, he still does.

And, apart from his undoubted talents there's not much doubt that that was the real secret of the success of the little Jewish boy from London's East End who was considered to be too frail, but who lived to see himself a legend just the same.

NEXT THURSDAY:

A born fighter

AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL

Cleveland Indians Chalk Up Eighth Win In Nine Games

New York, April 22.

The Cleveland Indians, rolling in high gear, made it eight out of nine today when they crushed the Detroit Tigers, 10-1 behind a barrage of three homers and Gary Bell's seven-hit pitching.

Jim Piersall, Rocky Colavito and Louie Gehrig each smashed homers in Cleveland's 15-hit assault against three Detroit pitchers.

Piersall led the onslaught, singling with the bases loaded in the third inning and following with a homer after Bell had singled in the fifth for a total of four runs batted in.

Smooth Pitching
The loss was the Tigers' eighth in nine games. Their only run off Bell came on Gail Harris' second-inning homer. Frank Lary gave up 10 of the tribe's hits and was charged with his second loss.

Murray Wall's smooth relief pitching helped the Boston Red Sox cool off the Baltimore Orioles, 6-4, in the only other American League day game.

Wall took over for starter Tim Lincecum in the fifth inning after the Orioles had rallied for four runs and limited them to one hit the rest of the way to earn his first victory of the season.

National League

The Red Sox knocked out loser Arnie Portocarrero with a five-run rally in the fourth inning when Boston sent 11 men to the plate. Jackie Jensen led Boston's 11-hit attack with a double and three singles and Vic Wertz celebrated his Fenway Park debut with the Red Sox by hitting a homer in the sixth.

New York was at Washington and Chicago at Kansas City in night games.

Alex Grammas hit his first home run since the 1935 season and drove in three more runs on sacrifices today to pace the St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-2 rout of the Chicago Cubs. Grammas, acquired from the Cincinnati Reds, got the Cardinals off to a one-run lead in the second inning when he belted the left centerfield for his first homer since September 8, 1955.

The 32-year-old veteran infielder then delivered one of two Cardinal runs in the fourth with a sacrifice fly, duplicated the feat in the sixth, and scored Bill White from third with a squeeze bunt in the eighth.

Hatless Ball

The Cardinals drove Cubs starter Taylor Phillips from the mound in the fourth and belted the third Cubs reliever, Maury Martin, for three runs in the ninth on homers by Glen Cimoli and Carl Flood.

Victory was credited to Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, his second of the season. Mizell pitched a hitless ball after allowing five singles in the first three innings. He was tapped for two runs in the third on a walk and three singles.

In National League night games, Cincinnati was at Pittsburgh, Milwaukee at Philadelphia, and San Francisco at Los Angeles.—U.P.I.

GORDON PIRIE

TO COMPETE IN U.S. MEET

Pomona, California, April 22. England's Gordon Pirie was given permission today by the National AAU to compete in Friday night's two-mile race in the 1st. San Antonio athletic meet.

Pirie has a best two-mile time of 8:35 and will compete against Bill Dellinger, America's No. 1 man in the event and now carrying U.S. Air Force colours, as well as Jerome Walters of the Southern California sliders.

With Pirie's entry into the star-studded field for the two-day meet, it also was announced that Harry O'Brien, who returned home yesterday from a trip to Africa, would enter the discus throw scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

O'Brien, holder of the current world's shot put record of 63 feet, 2 inches, said he would not meet Dallas Long and Bill Nieder in his favorite field event because he had hurt his hand while in Africa.—U.P.I.

MCC To Consider

Censorship On Player-Writers

London, April 22. Cancellation of a player's registration with his country is one of the suggestions to be considered in connection with MCC's efforts to curb writing and broadcasting on the game by players.

Cricketers wishing to write or broadcast would be required to submit their material to their county committees for censorship. Failure to do this could mean the cancellation of their county registration.—China Mail Special.

MALAYA'S SPECTACULAR RECORD

Scores 25 Goals In Three Junior Asian Cup Soccer Games

Kuala Lumpur, April 22. Malaya tonight forged ahead in the race for the Asian junior soccer championships when it scored its second successive win in the top section by trouncing Japan by six goals to nil and piled up four points.

Japan, defeated in both its outings in the top section, now stands virtually eliminated from the race for the Rahman Cup, although it has one more game to play against Hongkong.

Even if it wins against Hongkong, next Friday, the Japanese team will have only two points to its credit.

In vanquishing Japan, Malaya maintained its spectacular record in the championships in as much as no goal has so far been scored against it. Earlier in the championship, Malaya beat Ceylon by 12-0 and Hongkong 7-0.

They are followed by Ceylon with two points and Singapore and the Philippines with one point each.—France-Press.

Possible Rival

Malaya's possible rival for the Cup will be decided tomorrow when Korea meets Hongkong in the top section. Korea has already won two points by defeating Japan yesterday and a victory over Hongkong tomorrow would place her on a par with Malaya.

If, however, Korea is defeated by Hongkong tomorrow, the cup is as good as Malaya's for it not only leads in points but also in goal averages.

In the bottom section Thailand tonight caught up with

Rupert Brooke And St George

If you could stand upon the order of your going from this world; and if you were English and a poet; and if you acknowledged your debt to the golden world of Greek culture, then when better to die than upon St George's day, the day Will Shakespeare chose to die? And where better than upon the Island of Scyros, the fabled island of Achilles.

It was in this manner that Rupert Brooke died on April 23, 1915, to live forever as the very spirit of selfless patriotism, and in himself typifying the flower of British youth ruthlessly sacrificed in the war to end all wars.

On the Sunday before his death, in St Paul's Cathedral, the Dean had read to the congregation the poem:—
"If I should die, think only this of me: That there's some corner of a foreign field That is for ever England..."

As one who stands mid-way between his generation and the modern young Englishmen who know nothing of the two wars that have devastated the land, I address the following poem to him:—
"Was there ever an England such as that Rupert Brooke glimpsed in his poems?"

It seems an England of eternal summers, of deep purple shadows in the Cathedral twilight of spotless white flannels glinting in the long deep meadows as the last drawn out innings comes to a close.

It seems an England at sport. Her games are still her national heritage; not yet become the objects of international anarchy and bickering.

The thing to do
Above all it is an England of decency, an England that leaves strange force Eastern European politicians to work out strange theories on human relations.

England is still governed by a code: It is cricket or it is not cricket; it is the thing to do, or it is not the thing to do.

It is the England where every dog must have his day. England safe, quiet, confident, with youth at its finest about to march away to die for an England in which they believe.

Myself can remember an England that the young men returned from war tried to establish. Again for a time the England of Rupert Brooke flickered; then died away for ever.

The reason, so they saw, was that the old had betrayed the young.

The slaughter of the young men on the Somme and at the Dardanelles had handed England over to multitudes manufacturing. The fields were richer in flowers, and the birds sang sweeter as if realizing they might never sing in an English summer again.

The old qualities were absent again. What people call selfless patriotism was not apparent as such. Rather was it a selfish devotion to the affairs of the Norman blood or Norman peasant man little.

To be English stamped you as one of a proud brotherhood whether your address was Limehouse or Buckingham Palace.

For a moment the things were apparent, then as the siege of the island was abandoned new allies brought new ideas, and the great ideal was lost in the bickering of self esteem and racial prejudice.

But those who were fortunate enough to be English to be in England at that moment, realised a wonderful experience.

Other nations can stage their affairs better. They can fly their flags and parade their bands.

Spirit abroad
I do not remember seeing a flag fly; nor ever heard a band. But the spirit of St George was abroad. The offering of a cigarette, the rescuing of a neighbour's chattels from his bombed home; the giving of a lift to a foot-weary pilgrim; and what was never said—the enjoying of a way of life, so rich that it was worth dying for.

All that has passed and a generation has arisen that knows not England.

Many who read the reports I sent from England last year have taken me to task. Many more discerning have read between the lines. I was disappointed, not so much with men and affairs, but because England has become so un-English.

Perhaps in changing events, such a transition is essential. If so, I would have no part of it. None more than I respects the traditions and cultures of other lands. But when such things are exported, they rarely achieve merit in the land of their adoption.

I had thought that an England made secure by national provision would have been an England where its rich cultures would have flourished with renewed life.

Instead of which, I found that security made for rudeness; full employment encouraged laziness; and an alien culture was preferred to the quiet ways of England.

"I DON'T FEEL A DAY OVER 69"

The matted hair, jerking legs and guitar might sound well in New Orleans, but in England they seemed as exotic as a cannibal orgy.

The vulgar commercialising of Stratford-on-Avon might be smart business and good showmanship in Chicago, but in England it is down-right vulgar.

Ghostly Milton
But if in the dense packed towns of England, I found that a chap might sound well in New Orleans, but in England they seemed as exotic as a cannibal orgy.

The gentlemen of Monkton Hadley still challenge teams abroad as far as Finchley to a game of cricket.

And Ludlow stands where it did; and a pale ghostly Milton chases around with a producer's panic, his ghostly cast for Comus.

So we end where we began. Does the England of Rupert Brooke exist? I think so. I cannot believe that in spite of vulgar importations and mass entertainment, the things that England really stands for will pass away.

Kindness, decency, the ability to see another chap's point of view; a challenge for the underdog; a dislike of "showing off," and in the long run, to endure anything rather than surrender these values.

Such might not have been the historical qualities of St George, but over the centuries, they were the qualities he assumed.

Certainly they were the English. Never mind the Norman blood or Norman peasant man little.

"Her rights and sounds; And laughter, learnt of friends; and gentleness, In hearts at peace, under an English heaven."

TRANQUILLISING pills for "cow-pills" to be an odd idea. If ever a creature needed tranquillising it is the temperamental, impetuous small, which when in an irritable mood, reverts to the tactics of the professional footballer in mid-field.

The scheme for cow-pills is obviously a confession that the temperamental has failed to reduce the high spirits of the cows. No longer do they get that dreamy look in their eyes when a Chopin nocturne is wafted across the byre. No longer does Wagner in full blast stop them nodding at the milk-stool.

When Vanilla Darling swayed across the room, Mimsie stared at though Cleopatra had appeared. When Vanilla had gone, Mimsie attempted sarcasm. "Your aunt, I presume," she said. "No, no relation," said Sue, absent-mindedly. "Well, thank for the book. Don't let me detain you from the bathing-pool." Sue gasped. "The one," said Mimsie haughtily, "which is not mentioned in your thrilling book about departmental administration. Good-day, Mr. Sue." Sue told his forefinger horizontally along his nose. "I shall never understand women," he said to himself.

SOKOLOV HAS WIFE TROUBLES

Moscow.
Comrade Sokolov is in a quandary. He has wife trouble and mother-in-law trouble, and all on account of God—in whose existence he does not believe.

Alexander Andreyevich Sokolov, who spread the Communist Party line in the factories and collective farms of the Soviet Union.

Part of his job is to carry on anti-religious propaganda at a construction-workers' dormitory in Kiselevsk, Siberia, where he is stationed.

All was well in the Sokolov residence until his mother-in-law moved in.

Then came a series of events which have caused Sokolov to turn for help to the Communist Party magazine "Agitation," a part of handbook for people in his line of endeavour.

In their three years of married life, he wrote in a letter published by the magazine, he never noticed any religious feelings in his wife Taisia.

But now, "egged on" by her mother," she began insisting that they have their two-year-old son baptized.

Foot Down
Sokolov put his foot down. But as husbands often do, he finally gave in to the women "to save."

"After that," he wrote, "I saw that my wife began to pray to God and observe religious fasts." (God is spelled with a small "g" in the Soviet Union.)

"All of a sudden," he continued, "she proposed that we go through a church wedding. I refused."

She said, "Then I'm leaving you." "I did not believe her. The next day I came home from work—wife, son, and mother-in-law were all gone."

Sokolov tracked his wife down and asked her to come back to him. But her mother set three conditions: that he agree to a church wedding, that he sever Party connections, and stop conducting anti-religious propaganda, and that he "pray to God, go to church and read religious books."

Divorce
This time Sokolov stood his ground, whereupon the mother-in-law took Taisia and the child to another town, where she is trying to arrange a divorce and find Taisia another husband, this time a believer.

"Dear Editorial Board," Sokolov exclaimed, "I would like to snatch my wife out of the clutches of the churchgoers."

"I want to bring my son up in the Communist spirit, so that he would be a worthy citizen of his country. Advise me, what am I to do?"

The magazine, in a 1,300-word reply, told Sokolov he himself is partly to blame. "Apparently," they wrote, "your wife does not read the papers, does not go to any lectures, does not belong to any social organizations."

Those who are in the service of the cult of religion look advantage of your carelessness over your wife's ideological development. They found a way to the young woman through her mother.

"Impermissible"
"The drama in your family is the result of the impermissible concession you made toward religion when you agreed to have your son baptized. The enemy, whether military or ideological, becomes a hundred times more insolent when he is offered concession..."

The editors also addressed Taisia in reproachful tones: "How could you, a young Soviet woman, permit the churchgoers to enmesh you? How could you, for the sake of religion, leave a loving husband and part your child from his father?"

And a word to the mother-in-law: "Neither your son-in-law nor any other atheist bidders yet from observing religious ceremonies. And you—you have committed gross indignity against your atheist son-in-law..."

The Sokolov case, the magazine said, shows that anti-religious propaganda in the Soviet Union should be intensified—though, of course, "to believe or not to believe in God is the personal affair of every Soviet citizen."

Joey Was A Joy, But A Jonah
Southampton.
Ever since Joey the parakeet stowed away on the Queen Elizabeth the crew of the big liner began to notice a change in the weather.

Joey, a ship's favourite from the captain down to the deck-swabbers, was found on the world's biggest liner two months ago after he flew through a port hole and decided to stay. The ship's officers adopted him and bought a luxury cage which they hung in the ward room.

Joey brightened the day by whistling before breakfast and brought joy and happiness into the lives of the ship's officers.

But after several crossings the crew began to notice that the weather seemed to have taken a turn for the worse.

A Jonah
When all logical explanations fell short, the crew started to believe that the bad weather was caused by the bird stowed away on board.

That Joey was really a Jonah—a bringer of bad luck. The crew's opinion split on what to do with the cheerful little bird. Finally the rumours reached the captain's ears. Commodore George Morris decided that the bird must go and Joey, who made 10 trans-Atlantic crossings, was assigned to permanent shore duty in the kitchen of a junior officer's home in Southampton.—U.P.I.

ASSISTANT GOVERNMENT PRINTER GIVES EVIDENCE ENTRY PERMITS DESCRIBED AS FORGERIES

A total of 578 documents purporting to be Hongkong Police entry permits were described as forgeries this morning in the Victoria District Court.

Evidence to this effect was given by Mr J. R. Lee, acting Assistant Government Printer, in the case against four men and a woman on trial before Judge B. J. Jennings.

JUDGE ADMITS POLICEMAN'S STATEMENT

Yao Chi-sien, a 30-year-old Police constable, was alleged to have said in answer to a robbery charge, "I did this because I am going to get married."

The statement was read out by Mr Wong Chan-po, a Police interpreter, at Yao's trial before Mr Justice C. W. Rees, Senior Puisne Judge, at the Criminal Sessions this morning. Yao is alleged to have robbed the manager of the Kwong Tak Loong grocery at 13 Irving Street of $14,000 on the night of February 1. He pleads not guilty.

Interpreter

Mr Wong testified this morning that he acted as an interpreter between Det. Insp. D. Furniss and the accused at the Eastern Police station on February 2 when a charge of robbery with a weapon was read to the accused.

He said he read the caution to the accused whereupon the accused raised his head and elected to make a statement.

The accused then wrote the statement in his own handwriting, Mr Wong said.

The interpreter said at the time of taking the statement, no force, threat or promise had been used on the accused.

The statement was later admitted as evidence and was read out by Mr Wong.

Earlier, Mr Justice Rees told the jury that after they had retired yesterday afternoon, he, the judge, had decided to admit the statement, although it was made by the accused to Det. Staff Sergeant Lai Man-yu.

Statement Read

Mr Justice Rees then ordered the statement be read out, in which the accused allegedly admitted having committed the robbery.

Hearing is continuing. Mr Simon L. Crown Counsel, prosecuting, assisted by Det. Insp. Furniss.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Shakespeare's Birthday

Sir,—In your issue of Saturday, April 18, on page 18, under the heading "Your Radio Listening for Next Week in Detail", column 3, the following announcement appears:—

"Thursday, sees the 350th anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare. In celebration of the occasion Radio Hongkong is broadcasting a programme in tribute to England's greatest poet."

Now, it is generally agreed that William Shakespeare was born on April 23, 1564, so it would seem that Radio Hongkong is forty-five years late in its celebration.

The 350th was in fact celebrated in April 1914. However, if Radio Hongkong can wait another five years, it can then make a real splash for the 400th anniversary of the birth of the Bard. Incidentally, it will also be the 348th anniversary of his death.

STAFFORD.

The five are charged with conspiring together between March 1, 1958, and January 16, 1959, to help members of the public obtain driving licences fraudulently by producing documents purporting to be licences issued in Singapore, Brunei and North Borneo.

They are Tsai Wan, alias Tsai Chi-sank, Wong Sik-kin, Mak Keung, Chan Chun, alias Chan Kwai-hun (the woman), and O Shiu-ming.

Another man, Chan Kan-kau, who had been named as third accused, was given six months yesterday when he pleaded guilty to possession of and uttering a forged driving licence.

The first accused is also charged with possession of 578 forged entry permits, and the sixth accused with forging them. The two face an additional count of conspiring together to forge them.

Official Copy

Today, Mr Lee told the Court that the Government Printer was the sole authority for the printing of Police entry permits. He produced an official copy of that form.

Handed a document by the prosecutor, Chief Inspector C. L. Smith, the witness said that although it purported to be an entry form it was a forgery. There were at least four spelling mistakes in it, he went on. The background tint was poorly matched, as compared with the genuine specimen.

The type spacing was irregular, whereas that in the real form was not.

Mr Lee was shown the remaining 577 forms mentioned in the charge. He identified all of them as forgeries.

Hearing is proceeding.

Dame Margot Arrives In New York

The ballerina's telephone call did not go through immediately and reporters got answers to several questions before she interrupted her press conference to take a call from London.

"I do not know where my mother is," she said in reply to another question. She also said she would not answer any question about Panama "because once I start answering one you will go on asking questions."

Reporters were impressed with the good-natured way in which Dame Margot faced the barrage of questions hurled at her.

Dark Circles

Dame Margot looked fit and tanned though there were dark circles under her eyes. She said she hoped to return to Panama "after all, it's my husband's country."

Asked if she would be let in, she laughed, shrugged her shoulders and said: "I cannot answer that."—Reuter.

Condition

Satisfactory

The condition of the 11 firemen and one policeman, who were burned when an electric generator exploded yesterday in the Police Post on Route Twink, near Tran Wan was reported as satisfactory this morning.

A spokesman of the Fire Brigade said that the investigation into the cause of the explosion was now being carried out by the Labour Department and Government Electrical and Mechanical Inspector.

WAR DEAD REMEMBERED IN CEREMONY AT THE CENOTAPH

The strains of "The Last Post" sounded across the central reclamation area today as members of the Royal Society of St George remembered the dead of two world wars.

The president of the Society, Mr W. Stoker, laid a shield shaped wreath at the foot of the cenotaph.

Earlier, four white-uniformed members of the First Battalion, the Green Howards had been stationed at each corner of the base of the cenotaph. They presented arms, then slowly reversed them.

Members of the Society then marched in pairs from the doorway of the Hongkong Club to the monument.

As Mr Stoker laid the wreath two trumpeters on the Cenotaph sounded the "Last Post."

World Tour

Kam Kwong, 32-year-old unemployed hawker, of 252 Wan-chai Road, ground floor, pleaded guilty.

Man Who Claimed Heroin For $800 Gets Year's Gaol

A man who gave himself up to the Police as the owner of a quantity of heroin which the Police had earlier seized, was gaoled for a year today when it was found that he had agreed to "take the rap" for the true owner for $800.

The man was a 24-year-old barber, Chan Che-wor who appeared before Mr T. L. Yang at Central Magistracy this morning on a charge of conspiracy to pervert public justice, to which he pleaded guilty.

Inspector H. C. Chiu said last Saturday Chan reported to the Marine Police Station and claimed responsibility for 20.3 grammes of heroin seized by the police in a hut at Rennie's Mill Camp on April 13.

As a result of the raid, the police arrested a woman, Chan So-yuk, and charged her with the possession of the drugs. Enquiries revealed that Chan was not the actual person responsible for the heroin and that he claimed he was because of $800 paid to him by the woman's husband.

Chan admitted he had been approached by the woman's husband who offered him the money.

The woman, Chan So-yuk, 33, living in a hut at Rennie's Mill Camp, was later sentenced to nine months in prison by Mr Yang for possessing the heroin.

The police raided the woman's hut last Saturday and found the drugs hidden in a secret compartment in a four-drawer desk in her bedroom.

From the Files 25 years AGO

THE latest safety device for pedestrians, especially designed to protect persons alighting from trams, has made its appearance at the junction of Des Voeux Road Central and Queen Victoria Street opposite the Central Fire Brigade station. The device is two low wooden platforms about 15 feet in length. They are a few inches above the level of the road and passengers as they leave the trams, will walk directly on to them and remain there until the road is clear for crossing.

A remarkable article will appear in the May issue of the Atlantic Monthly. Mr William Harland Hale will reveal that Kaiser Wilhelm II in the now famous "lost interview" which was given to Hale's father, William B. Hale in 1908, and urged the alliance of Germany and the U.S. fight the growth of Japanese power in Asia.

The Kaiser deeply deplored Japan's defeat of Russia and declared: "I wish my battalions could have had a chance at them. We would have made short work of it. We must not allow China and Japan to get together. The particular duty the white man owes to himself at this moment is to prevent Japan from swallowing China."

England is a traitor to the White Man's cause. The interview which the Kaiser gave was regarded as extremely indiscreet. The German Foreign Office intervened before publication, first subjecting it to a severe censorship, and later withdrew it.
